1. Sendible

If you want to manage your social networks, schedule messages, engage your audiences, and measure ROI from one, easy-to-use dashboard, you should seriously consider using Sendible. Sendible does everything Hootsuite and Sprout Social does, maybe better, plus a handful of things Hootsuite hasn't added to its software yet.

2. Google Docs

There's a huge list of writing tools that bloggers can use. One of these tools is Google Docs. Google's suite of Docs, Sheets, and Slides allows you to create and edit documents online, for free.

Here are the pros and cons of using Google Docs over Microsoft Word:

Pros:	Cons:

3. Fyrebox

Fyrebox is a free tool that lets you make your own quiz in minutes. Creating a quiz is super easy with Fyrebox. Just follow these simple steps:

Step #1: On the Fyrebox homepage, click the "CREATE A QUIZ FOR FREE" button

Step #2: Create a free account by filling in your personal information. Then click the "CREATE ACCOUNT."

Step #3: Choose your quiz template. Click the "template" placeholder to begin.

Step #4: Choose a premade quiz. Top brands such as Shopify, Leadpages and other educational sites have already made professional quizzes that you can borrow from and tweak.

Step #5: Select your preference. If you want users to know when they answered a question correctly, you can set that up, too.

Step #6: Edit your questions and answers. Remember that we're using a template, so these questions won't be relevant to your audience. But you can edit it in this step, and provide the right answer.

Next, you can define the pass mark for your quiz. Just slide the bar below to set it.

Finally, decide what the interface should look like if the quiz has been successfully completed. Just click "YES" to collect players details such as email address and name.

The quiz maker contains a lot of other great features, which enable you to set a time limit, customize the look and feel of your quiz, and even use your own custom background image.

4. Quora

Quora is a great tool for bloggers. It has everything you need to engage with other people and actually build a thriving online business. You can connect and network with fellow marketers, business leaders, passionate students, and high-profile investors. The best part is that it's free, and you can use it to find a lot of great ideas for your blog posts.

5. HubSpot's Blog Topic Generator

If you're stuck on what to write about, or how to structure your title, you don't have to be anymore. HubSpot Blog Topic Generator is a time-saving blogging tool that can help you with this crucial task.

Step #1: Go to HubSpot Blog Topic Generator. Then plug your target keywords or search queries into the three blank spaces. Click "GIVE ME BLOG TOPICS!" button.

Step #2: Get your blog topics. This is a week's worth of blog posts. You can either tweak to suit your audience, or use as they are.

6. Trello

Trello is a time-saving blogging tool that provides a free visual way of organizing projects with your team. With Trello, you can see everything about your project at a single glance, collaborate with your team members, and easily execute a successful project while carrying everyone along. The most important element in Trello is the board. It's similar to Pinterest, but its focus is on projects, not pins.

7. LinkedIn pulse

LinkedIn Pulse is a self-publishing app for writers, bloggers, and industry experts. You can use it to write, publish and distribute high-quality content to the right audience.

It can help you gain more visibility, because you get to target LinkedIn's large user base. Publishing on LinkedIn Pulse is like guest blogging.

8. Evernote

Evernote is one of the best note-taking apps around. Bloggers shouldn't leave home without having an Evernote app installed on your mobile device. You can never tell when ideas worth noting will occur to you. It strips out extraneous formatting, letting you read your notes and saved pages in a distraction-free environment.

9. Wunderlist

Wunderlist is a productivity tool for getting things done, setting reminders for important events, and running virtual errands. You can use it to keep your life in sync with a professional to-do list.

10. Squirrly

Squirrly is more than a SEO tool – it's a complete content marketing suite. With this simple tool, you can write content that is both SEO-friendly and human-friendly.
